HONGKONG, MARCH 24th, 1913.

The new Japanese Cabinet is apparently to be allowed to survive, although it is meeting with a good deal of heckling from the Opposition, who, however, are too divided among themselves to be able to overturn it. As might be expected, the chief point of interest is the question of the finances, more especially as to what retrenchments are to be made so as to allow of a reduction in the taxation. The intentions of the new Government, so far as they have been elicited, have not proved very satisfactory in this respect. It has taken over the Budget of the short-lived KATSURA Cabinet in its entirety, and is endeavouring to reconcile its supporters to placing implicit trust in its intentions. The Budget, it announces, is only meant to fix the limits, and retrenchment will be made within these limits as far as possible, while the Budget for the following fiscal year will be drawn up to show a definite retrenchment of a specified amount—or, rather, of an amount which is to be specified when the time comes. This is exactly the policy of the KATSURA Cabinet, however, and as the Seiyukai, the party which brought about the downfall of that Cabinet, was especially strong in its denunciation of such an opportunist policy, it feels itself now in a somewhat embarrassed condition. The Seiyukai has already been severely attacked by the seceders from its ranks at the time the new Government was formed, who have founded a new party under the title of the Seiyu Club, for their lack of consistency in supporting a Ministry which does not differ in principles from the one which it overthrew, and if reports be correct the Seiyukai party itself is by no means unanimous on the matter. The fact is that Admiral YAMAMOTO entered very lightly into the task of conducting the affairs of the country, without sufficient knowledge of the questions to be solved, and unless he finds some way of ensuring the loyalty of his followers, the force of public opinion may cause them to revolt. For it has to be remembered that the conciliation of the Seiyukai by no means carries with it the conciliation of the people. All the leading and responsible organs of public opinion were strongly opposed to the compromise effected, under which Admiral YAMAMOTO was able to form his Ministry, and their strong criticisms of Ministerial utterances tend to increase rather than diminish the general dissatisfaction of the people. On the question whether expansion of the Army and Navy is to be restricted or allowed to go on as formerly, the Government is very reticent. It is possible that it has itself not yet made up its mind in view of the difficulty of reconciling the conflicting views within the Cabinet. The exact demands of the Army are still uncertain, beyond the fact that it desires to create two new Divisions for use in Korea, but the Navy's ambitions have leaked out more or less fully. The original proposal was for the enormous amount of 540,800,000 yen, but this being evidently an impossible figure in the present condition of Japan's resources, it was later reduced to 350,000,000 yen. Again it was evident that the resources of the country were insufficient to meet such an expenditure, and the Navy authorities proceeded to make a further curtailment, arriving at the sum of 29,000,000 yen, which it regards as the irreducible minimum. No Government has yet definitely accepted this programme, however, and it remains to be seen whether the present Ministry will go further than its predecessors. The danger is that an open acceptance would at once lead to increased pressure being brought to bear by the Army to have their demands granted. The jealousy between the two Services is extreme, and since neither can claim superiority the submission of one to the other is impossible. It was on this rock that the SATOMI Cabinet foundered, for while granting a fair amount for extra expenditure to the Navy, it endeavoured to reduce the Army vote, thus causing a revolt. The present Ministry has granted a small extra expenditure to the Navy, but has been careful not to bind itself to any definite amount. As long as the present regulation holds good—that the Ministers of the two Services must be officers of high rank on the active list—so long will it be difficult to restrain the ambitions of the Army and Navy. This fact is clearly seen by the Opposition, which has been trying to get the regulation modified, with what success remains to be seen. It is hardly probable that a Ministry headed by an Admiral on the active list will be inclined to abolish the regulation, and it is to be feared that anything less than abolition will hardly satisfy the party politicians, who have all more or less pledged themselves to secure this reform. This is another of the dangers before the present Ministry which it will have some difficulty in avoiding.

EASTER AT THE CHURCHES.

The usual celebrations of Eastertide were observed at the various Churches in the Colony on Friday and yesterday. Unfortunately the climatic conditions on Friday were such as to incline the major part of the community to remain indoors, and the services necessarily suffered numerically. In the evening, however, St. John's Cathedral was crowded on the occasion of the performance of selections from the great oratorio, "The Messiah," by the choir. Mr. Denman Fuller presided at the organ, and the soloists were Mrs. Dealy (contralto), Mr. J. W. White (tenor), Master T. Martin (treble), Miss White and Mrs. Hopper (soprano), and Mr. J. E. White (bass). The services at the Churches yesterday were very well attended.

ALLEGED THEFT FROM THE "DILWARA."

A man named John Lewis Behan was charged before Mr. Melbourne at the Magistracy on Saturday with stealing a box belonging to the ship's doctor of the s.s. Dilwara, also with being in unlawful possession of it.

Prosecutor said that the defendant joined the vessel at Penang. The day the vessel arrived in Hongkong witness was called on deck to see the port medical officer. He was away about ten minutes, and on his return to the cabin he found his box was gone. The box (which was in Court) contained wearing apparel, a medical diploma, silver money and bank notes. The total value was about $300.

In reply to defendant witness did not think it would be possible for a coolie to go into the wrong cabin and take a box by mistake. When witness was brought by the police to Victoria House, the box was locked. The contents were intact, and nothing was missing.

A sampan woman deposed to bringing the defendant and some luggage from the ship to the shore. There was another European with him. When she removed the luggage, it was not all in the same cabin, but the defendant pointed out his own box and the doctor's box to take away.

The case was adjourned until to-morrow.

OPIUM-GROWING INQUIRY.

BY BRITISH OFFICIALS.

Mr. Archibald Rose, Assistant Chinese Secretary in Peking, and Mr. L. King, of H.M. Consulate, Chingtu, have been appointed to investigate the suppression of opium in Hunan. They will start from Changsha on April 1st. Two Peking officials and two Hunan officials, nominated by the Chinese, will accompany them.

The poppy in Hunan matures in April. The British officials will, therefore, possibly proceed to Anhui and Shantung afterwards, to investigate these provinces, where the poppy matures later and where a good deal is reported to be growing in several districts, although the Government asserts that they are free.—N.Y.C. A THREATENED BOYCOTT.

CHANGCHUN CHINESE AND JAPANESE.

A boycott is threatened against the Mitsui Company at Changchun (Manchuria) owing to dissatisfaction over the recent action of the Japanese police concerning a case of breach of contract on the part of a Chinese merchant.

It appears that the Mitsui Company paid the amount of a purchase, but did not receive the beans. It is alleged that subsequently seven employees of the defuncting firm were arrested on premises situated in the Japanese Concession. It is reported that the Taotai and the Chinese Chamber of Commerce requested the transfer of the prisoners, but that this was refused. The Chinese state that one old man died in prison. This appears to have given rise to wild reports.

The sending of a telegraphic message round the world without retransmission by human agency at the terminals of the ocean cables and the land lines, is made possible by an invention of Mr. Gott, the chief engineer of the Commercial Cable Company.

THE BALKAN WAR.

BESIEGED ADRIANOPOLE.

A message from Adrianople says that the town is holding out heroically. The forts are intact, and perfect order prevails. The authorities are distributing provisions.

It is reported that dissension exists among the Allies, and that the Servians are staying passively in their lines.

ASSISTANCE FOR MONTENEGRO. The Times Salonika correspondent telegraphs that a Serbo-Greek armada, comprising sixteen transports and conveying thirty-six siege and other cannon along with 13,000 Servian infantry with divisional staff, sailed on March 17th for San Giovanni di Medua.

GREEK SUCCESS.

Reuter's Athens correspondent states that the Greeks have occupied Teplini, seventy-five miles south-east of Durazzo.

SEVERE FIGHTING AT CHATALJA.

It is reported from Sofia that there has been further severe fighting at Chatalja, two Turkish divisions attacking the Bulgarian left and centre. They were repulsed, and left five hundred dead and wounded on the field. The attack was renewed in the evening on the left, but was repulsed.

A later telegram from Sofia states that five divisions of Turks at Chatalja with artillery and cavalry, in attempting to advance, supported by warships, were routed with heavy loss. Two battalions were isolated and driven to the seashore, where a portion escaped in ships at night.

THE PEACE NEGOTIATIONS.

Reuter learns that no reply is expected from the Balkan Allies for some days, because the necessary communications have to pass between them. Meanwhile, informal advice is being given at the Balkan capitals.

The movement of Austrian warships has attracted some attention in London, but it is declared authoritatively that no new situation has arisen to occasion fresh anxiety.

AMBASSADORS MEET.

Contrary to expectation, owing to the development in the Balkan situation, the Ambassadors met Sir Edward Grey on Saturday afternoon. Diplomatic quarters are reticent regarding the meeting of the Ambassadors, but it is admitted that pourparlers of the greatest importance are progressing.

A prominent diplomat, interviewed by a Reuter's representative, said that all he could say was that a general settlement is in train and is expected every day, unless there is a hitch.

GERMAN STEAMER SEIZED.

The Greeks have seized the German steamer Irmgard off Lemnos.

AUSTRORUSSIAN UNDER-STANDING.

The last Austro-Russian difference has been removed by Austria agreeing to the cession of Djakova to Serbia and Russia assenting in return to the inclusion of Skutari in Albania.

AUSTRIA AND MONTENEGRO.

Vienna newspapers are giving prominence to the reports of the damage to Austrian property at Skutari, though it is admitted that it occurred a fortnight ago. It appears also that some Austrian ship was searched or interfered with by Servians at San Giovanni.

Vienna newspapers state that Austria demands from Montenegro permission for non-combatants to leave Skutari, an inquiry in the presence of the Austrian Consul into the assassination of a priest near Djakova, the immediate discontinuance of forcible conversions of Roman Catholic Albanians to Orthodoxy, and full satisfaction for the forcible employment of the Shodra in landing Servian troops at San Giovanni.

It is semi-officially denied in Rome that Italy is joining Austria in a naval demonstration on the coasts of Montenegro and Albania.

Reuter's Vienna correspondent announces that Montenegro has refused to allow non-combatants to leave Skutari, though she promises that in future the fire of the Montenegrin artillery will be directed only at the fortifications and not at buildings. This reply is considered as inadequate. The reply is equally unsatisfactory with reference to the other demands.

The despatch of an ultimatum is expected.

SIGNIFICANT ACTION BY AUSTRIA.

Austria-Hungary has notified the Powers that in view of the attitude of Montenegro and the position of the Catholic community at Skutari, she has decided to protest to Cetinje and to send a squadron to cruise along the Albanian coasts.

The loyal toast having been honoured, the CHAIRMAN introduced subjects for discussion. He said:—It is customary for the London Chamber of Commerce to hold from time to time a series of dinners followed by discussions, in which members and guests take part, on commercial topics of general or special interest. The first of these dinners for the present Session was held in November last, when the subject was "The Effect of the Panama Canal on the World's Commerce," and the discussion on that occasion led to the appointment of a Special Committee to consider the whole question and to initiate practical proposals in the interests of British trade. The subject chosen for to-night's dinner is "Trade Developments in the Far East." This is a matter which indirectly interests the whole membership of the Chamber, but it has also a special interest for those members concerned in trade in the Far East. It has, therefore, been chosen partly on that ground, and partly because it is desired to make better known the aims and objects of the Far Eastern Section of the Chamber, which was formed on January 7th last, and which embraces in its membership some 250 firms and companies engaged in trade with China, Japan, and the Malay Peninsula.

PROSPECTS IN CHINA. As regards China, the Chairman of the new Section, Mr. Henry Keswick, M.P., will be able to speak from his personal knowledge of the East, having had considerable experience in Hongkong and elsewhere as a member of the well-known firm of Messrs. Jardine, Matheson & Co., and to doubt members of the Chamber will welcome the opportunity of hearing him in his new capacity on the position and prospects of British trade under the new conditions now exist. Commercial men cannot afford to be indifferent to the changes which may be brought about by the new regime in China as affecting British trade interests in that country. It will be profitable to consider how far the new conditions will be favourable to those interests; how far they may be adversely affected, and how far any present difficulties may be overcome.

POINTS FOR CONSIDERATION.

Incidentally some such questions as the following will arise:—(a) The attitude of the Chinese official and commercial classes towards British traders; (b) The future of Education in China on European or American lines; (c) The prospects of development of means of communication and other methods of developing the resources of the country; (d) The need for improved British Consular representation in China, having regard to the Consular action by other countries; (e) The competition of Germany, the United States, Russia and Japan in Chinese markets; (f) The probable changes in methods of business under the new conditions.

As regards Japan, there are also several matters of special interest:—(a) What has been the effect of the Japanese Tariff on British trade? (b) The development of Japanese home industry in supplying the wants of Japan and in assisting its export trade; (c) What has been the effect of the development of the Japanese Mercantile Marine upon the shipping of other countries, including British? (d) How far has the increased political importance of Japan assisted its economic development? (e) What steps could be taken to improve trade relations with Japan and what are the drawbacks? (f) What is the attitude of the Japanese official and commercial classes towards British traders?

MARKING TIME.

While it may safely be left to Mr. Keswick, Mr. Townsend of the China Association, and Professor Southill, of the China University, to develop the most interesting points in connection with China, the following observations should be studied:—Our connection with China commercially is one of long standing, and we have always had and still have a considerable trade with that country since the sixteenth century. We have certain Treaty rights entitling us to special trading privileges in what are known as the Treaty ports, the nature of which will be understood by many of the experts present; but actual business developments in the future will depend upon the attitude and stability of the Chinese Republic which, since 1911, has taken the place of the old régime. Until matters have settled down business men can only "mark time," and, so to speak, live from "hand to mouth." The possibilities, however, if uncertain, must be immense when we consider the population of China, estimated at over 320 millions, its vast area, and the important business connections we have built up over a long period of years.

THE SALVATION OF CHINA.

MR. HENRY KESWICK, M.P., said he proposed to speak from the point of view of the British merchant in the Far East. He might say that he did not feel it incumbent on him to point out to their competitors how they could best follow the British on the road which they had made through China and into China's trade—which road was open to others to follow if they wished. It was not incumbent on him to show others how to catch up and possibly to pass the British merchant. They had in China an enormous field, but at the present time it was somewhat closed to them. This was owing to the change of Government that had occurred there. But there still remained one factor, namely, the great body of Chinese people who were not concerned in uprisings and government intrigues; but were born traders and were determined to trade, no matter what else happened. That was the salvation of China. To-day there was supposed to be in China a Republican Government. He wondered if any of them could really in their innermost heart imagine that such a grotesque thing actually existed. When he went to China nineteen years ago he was told he was very lucky, as China was just awakening. Looking back over these years he saw enormous improvements in all directions, but he was still firmly convinced that the Chinese was not a man who wanted a Republic. The Chinese did not want to send delegates to Peking to rule him, but he wanted a master, and a master he would have. He (the speaker) might be a bold man to make such statements and they might be controverted. In fact, he should like to hear them so controverted, because he was open to conviction, but at present he saw no arguments to the contrary.

THE CHINESE AS TRADERS.

They had, then, the great body of trading Chinese, and was it not extraordinary to notice how during all the changes of the past year the commercial activities of the Chinese nation had continued? The rebellion broke out in the centre of the tea district, and notwithstanding the disturbed state of affairs a larger quantity of tea than usual was brought down. That showed the determination of the Chinese to trade.

THE OPIUM QUESTION.

A few words concerning opium, continued Mr. Keswick. He saw around these tables bottles which had contained good wine, from which, no doubt, the diners had derived comfort and benefited therefrom. He suggested that opium, an exceedingly expensive drug, supplied in moderation to the Chinese, produced a certain amount of comfort. It was almost unnecessary for him to point out that wine taken to excess had, if anything, a worse effect than if opium were smoked to excess. However, this was a contentious matter. What distressed him was the fact that the Chinese Government was under treaty obligations to allow the entry of this opium into China and she was going entirely against her treaty obligations. If China broke her obligations in this respect there was no reason why she should not do so in regard to other articles of trade. The opium question had been taken up by enthusiasts and fanatics, and worked to its full extent. Nothing could alter the fact that China was being allowed to break her treaty obligations.

THE CONSULAR BODY.

Taking the Consular body as a whole, Mr. Keswick thought they were an excellent and fine class of men, a credit to the service. He knew from experience that they did their very best to assist the merchants in every possible way. No body in China was more respected than Sir John Jordan, who spared no efforts to get to back him at Home? In their present Foreign Secretary they had a splendid man, but he could not stand alone. He had to have behind him the force and support of the Cabinet and the Foreign Minister did not receive that backing which he would like. He was perfectly certain that Sir John Jordan must have one of the most heart-breaking tasks that anyone could imagine. The Chamber of Commerce was urging the Consular body to take more interest in trade and he felt that the Chamber was not working in vain.

RAILWAYS AND LOANS.

Mr. Keswick instanced railways as making for trade development. He was very much interested in seeing a map of China on which had been drawn the programme of Dr. Sun Yat-sen for the further railway building. Most of them looked like an ordinary map of China dotted here and there. This particular map linked up every single town on any map of China one had ever seen, and as a result it looked like the map of a country over which ordinary wire netting had been placed. He felt that Dr. Sun Yat-sen in this particular ambition was almost as optimistic as he was when he started the Chinese Republic. There was no doubt that there would be railway expansion, but the building of railways required money. They were all anxious to know when the Six-Power loan would be effected. He regretted diplomatic interference in trade, but in this case it was inevitable. China was such a gloriously great country that every nation was anxious to have a finger in the pie. The way in which other nations moved was through their diplomats. Britain moved through her traders, and it was owing to this difference in method that there had been such a lot of trouble over financial matters in China. When the loan was effected then they would see such opportunities for trade as had never before been witnessed in China. He could say that the British merchants were not afraid of fair competition, but it was a matter of extreme difficulty to compete with foreign traders when the latter were assisted by Government subsidy. So far as Japan was concerned in this respect he fancied there was a new spirit moving in that nation, and before long the people who paid the money would call the tune. The attitude of the Chinese merchants towards the British merchants was entirely friendly, for the reason that the Chinese had found that when the British trader gave his word he meant it. That was the greatest recommendation they had and he trusted it would be carefully conserved by their people.

THE PATH OF PROGRESS.

MR. A. M. TOWNSEND, President of the China Association, said they must be impressed by the fact that the volume of trade had not only been maintained but had increased during the last eighteen months. The fact was that China could not leave trade alone under any circumstances. It was difficult to predict what might be the future of the political situation, but if happily the country should be properly governed along the path of progress then the commerce of China would increase one hundredfold. In the meantime the spirit of evolution was abroad and China would never again be the inert nation that they had known for so long a time. They had at present evidences of real progress in China in many directions and these would be extended by the growing system of railway communications. China was rich in natural resources, and richer still in the unfailing industry of her people, in their frugality, and splendid physical qualities. They were people easily governed and disposed to peace, if only they were governed righteously, so that the people could enjoy the fruits of their labours.

there was no doubt all would see a social character, as well as progress in the habits and life of the people which must have a great influence on the commerce of the world. In the development and expansion of the trade of China nothing was more important than the proper reorganization and regulation of the currency of the country. This was a matter which might be classed as a Western science, and it was, therefore, with satisfaction that they heard that the Chinese Government had decided to employ Western experts to advise them on this weighty matter. Another evidence of the enlightened progress of the country was the recent appointment of a Financial Commissioner to reside in London, and no doubt this office would very materially assist in removing misunderstandings and misconceptions on both sides. At the present time China was a most attractive portion of the globe for engineers, financiers, manufacturers, and merchants, and, therefore, he congratulated the Far Eastern branch of the London Chamber of Commerce for having organised that gathering. He hoped it would be the forerunner of many others for similar discussions which could only result in good to the trade of China. (Applause.)

INFLUENCE OF EDUCATION.

Professor Southill spoke on the influence of education on trade development in China. He had come home, he said, to assist Lord William Cecil in gathering funds for the University, but so far their efforts had been unsuccessful. He pointed out that for many years American missions had had a strong educational policy in China, the American missions had taken advantage of every opportunity to open schools and colleges and at the present moment there were three gentlemen in America who were attempting to raise one million dollars for the advancement of education in the eastern Yangtze. These efforts were something of which the Americans might justly be proud. British education in China had been shamefully starved, and wealthy men in this country had not backed up the Missionary Societies in supporting the colleges and schools which the latter had started. He was pleased, however, to acknowledge the assistance received from the late Sir Hornumsey Atody and the Chamber of Commerce on behalf of the Hongkong University. He regretted that the friends of the proposed University for Hankow had not successfully prevailed on the British Government to remit five per cent. of the Boxer indemnity for this educational purpose. The Government would not accede to the request, and unless something could be done the scheme would shortly have to be withdrawn from the public. Was it wise to neglect the great opportunities which existed for the advancement of the mutual interests of both countries? He felt that it was to the interests of Britain that she should take a stronger hand in the educational development of China. A poor man was a poor buyer. Educate a nation and you enriched it. Educate the people and their purchasing power increased. A poor China must necessarily mean a poorer England, whereas an educated and developed and enriched China must of necessity mean a richer England also. (Applause.)

MR. C. V. SALE spoke from the Japanese point of view and thought it would be a good thing if the tariff in that country were revised in a downward direction. There would then be trade developments greater than any they had yet seen. Mr. Y. Ito (Nippon Yusen Kaisha), thought that there was no competition between the Far Eastern merchants to adopt the attitude of a guardian to a child, or a master to a pupil—to develop the young nations of the Far East, to make them stronger, so that they could produce more and consume more. That was the solution of the problem under discussion.

SIR WALTER HILLIER said that his experience in watching the development of trade had taught him that the reports which Consuls laboriously drew up and which filtered through the Foreign Office to date were always out of date. What the Chamber wanted in the Far East was its own agent—a man who would travel about and keep its members up to date in their information. The predominance of British trade in the Far East was lessening year by year. The Germans were cutting us out in every direction, and he was convinced that the reason was that they were much more alive to the necessity of having men on the spot to tell the principals on the other side of the world what was going on, while the principals were ready to take all the suggestions made to them. This sort of thing cost money, but our commercial rivals—Americans, Germans, and Japanese—seemed to be convinced that certain sums expended in acquiring commercial privileges was money well spent.

THE COMING CHINESE PARLIAMENT.

WHEN?

On the 17th inst. the National Assembly was again without a quorum. The few members present held informal discussion on the prospects of the opening of the permanent Assembly and of closing the provisional council. The Speaker said that according to his information at present altogether about 150 members of Parliament had arrived. As it needs 400 members of both houses to make a quorum, the prospect of opening the Assembly early next month seems doubtful. In the opinion of the council should sit until the date of the opening of the permanent Assembly is definitely fixed.

It is reported that the election of members of the Senate, in the Provincial Assemblies is not going on satisfactorily. The names in only ten provinces have returned. There is a deadlock between the two leading parties in the Assemblies in Hupeh, Hunan, and Fukien.

CHINA SEEKING LOANS.

The loan of £2,000,000 to the Chinese Government by the Kaifu Mining Administration has become impossible owing to the attitude of the British Government. The Chinese Government is now negotiating with a Belgian Syndicate for a loan of £10,000,000.

Not for several years has the Easter holidays in Hongkong proved so dreary as they have done this year. We are so accustomed to good weather that the spell of rain and mist at a holiday time was received with very bad grace indeed, and the number of pessimists who went about town during the week-end was larger than usual in Hongkong.

The Chinese farmers doubtless welcomed the deluge, as it lightened their efforts in flooding their newly-planted fields. Indeed the Chinese have an idea that as the rice has been planted it simply "must" rain.

H.E. the Governor on Thursday, I noticed, announced that the sanction of the Secretary of State had been received to set aside a portion of Crown land for a playground for the University. He did not indicate the site of the proposed recreation ground, and it would be interesting to know what locality has been selected for this purpose. There does not seem to be any favourable spot in the immediate vicinity of the University, though it would be preferable to have the playground as near to the institution as possible.

Reference to the University calls attention to the fact that the neighbourhood in which it is situated has developed remarkably within the past year or so. In addition to the hostels, and residences for the staff, there is a large number of new houses, which completely alter the appearance of that locality. The residential aspect is likely to be further emphasised at the demand for European residences has not yet been met.

Kowloon as a residential locality has grown considerably of late, and it may not be too soon to ask when something is going to be done in the way of providing additional street conveyance, either in the shape of motor busses or trams. The richas enjoy a monopoly at present, with the result that the richas pullers are more truculent than in any other part of the Colony. That, of course, is not the only reason for suggesting that some modern conveyances are necessary. The district has developed tremendously, and is progressing at a fairly rapid rate, and it seems timely to suggest that either trams or busses should be running along the thoroughfares of the peninsula. Some such scheme would help in the development of the place, and could doubtless be made to pay handsomely if a suitable scheme were devised.

The Chinese Republic has certainly a sense of courtesy. I notice that the officials on the Chinese section of the Kowloon-Canton Railway are wearing black bands on their sleeves in mourning for the Dowager Empress of China, who has just passed away. This expression of mourning is general, I understand, among the higher Chinese officials. It is certainly a very graceful act.

H.E. the Governor in his speech to the students of St. Stephen's College on Thursday expressed regret that among the parties which had come into being in China there was no Conservative party. I have understood from my Chinese informants that there was a very strong Conservative party in China, even among the Republicans. For instance, the supporters of Yuan Shih-kai are largely Unionists and Conservatives, and if we may judge from some of the more Radical Chinese journals that party is blamed for not doing things in a hurry, just as the Liberal papers at Home used to blame the Conservatives for their reactionary methods. It may be that this party is not so Conservative as His Excellency would like to see, but nevertheless we have to recognise the existence of a Conservative party in China.

A newspaper in the South asks, apropos of the Prince of Wales and the bagpipes, who was first of his dynasty to don the kilt, and answers the question by stating that it was George the Fourth, who on the occasion of his visit to Edinburgh after his coronation in 1822 made his appearance in full Highland costume of Stuart tartan. His Majesty, it is said, prided himself on his knowledge of Scotch, and at the famous ball in Holyrood Palace invited anyone to test this knowledge. A beautiful young lady approached His Majesty with the words, "Come, prece ma mao, ma canny callant." The King had to admit that he was nonplussed, and his chagrin was great when he discovered later that it was an invitation to "taste her mouth," in other words, to kiss her.

"Wipe your plates. If you were behind the scenes, that is, in the sculleries of the great hotels and restaurants, you would not hesitate a moment to follow my advice. Plates and glasses are all wiped with the napkins used by the customers." Such is the advice of an expert French cook, who speaks from his knowledge of the West. But what of the East? It reminds me of the police sergeant who caught his servant wiping plates with the master's sock. He upbraided him and cuffed him, whereupon the boy, intensely surprised, expostulated, "That sock no b'long clean sock, master!"—and he didn't realise that this made his fence so much the worse!

HAMEEN MU NICIPAL COUNCIL. ANNUAL MEETING.

Minutes of the annual general meeting of landrentors and ratepayers of the British Concession, Shamen, held in H.B.M. Consulate General, Canton, at 5 p.m., on March 14th, 1913.
Present:—Mr. J. W. Jamieson, H.B.M. Consul-General (18), in the chair; Messrs. Griffith (11), Maze (13), Hogg (3), Ahrendt (2), Steger (3), Martin (2), Lund (3), Bent (4), Adams (1), Alport (5), Carey (1), Lanning (4), Spalinger (1), Bohusiewicz (3), Huijgen (1), Piper (1), Macdonald (2), Cameron (5), Sorymouir (4), Tigges (1), Stanton (7), Staples (1), Smith (1), Yoshiwara (2), Metzler (3), Chadwick (2), Rössler (3), Combe (1), Feldt (1), Shields (2), Davenport (2), Chunnutt (1), Mehta (2), Jay (2), Albers (1), Sunderland (3). Total 123.
The required number of votes being represented, H. B. M. Consul-General declared the meeting open and the circular convening the meeting was read. A motion by the Chairman that the minutes of last meeting be taken as read was adopted. It was then intimated that Mr. T. E. Griffith, as Chairman of the outgoing Council, would be pleased to reply to any queries put forward with regard to the report and accounts for 1912.

CEMETERY WEARY.
Dr. Rössler brought to the notice of the meeting the lack at the present time of adequate landing facilities at the Cemetery and proposed the erection of an iron or wooden jetty, whichever should be deemed technically advisable.
Mr. Griffith replied that the question of a jetty had been raised at various times. Technical advice had been sought and it had been ascertained that without considerable expenditure (say, 2/3,000 dollars) a suitable iron structure could not be erected, while a wooden one would not resist for long the action of wind and tide.

SEPTIC TANKS.
Mr. Hogg referred to the statement in the report for 1912 to the effect that the septic tanks in Messrs. Arnold, Karberg's property were working satisfactorily, and asked if the Council were now prepared to sanction the institution of similar tanks on application by other property owners.

Mr. Griffith in reply stated that the incoming Council would, no doubt, on application accompanied by plan being made, judge each case on its own merits and discriminate accordingly. In the case of Messrs. Arnold, Karberg & Co., Dr. Davenport, after careful examination, had expressed himself satisfied with the tanks as at present constituted.
Mr. Stanton proposed, and Dr. DAVENPORT seconded, that the accounts and report for 1912 be adopted.
Carried unanimously.

ESTIMATES FOR 1913.
The CHAIRMAN then asked if any gentleman desired to comment on the estimates for the current year.

DEFENCE CORPS.
Mr. STANTON desired to be informed what was comprised under the heading "Defence Corps, $1,500."

Mr. Griffith, in justification of this estimate, quoted the expenditure of $1,800 in 1912 (ammunition, uniforms, etc.). He added that the influx of recruits would continue to entail a certain expenditure in uniforms and the sum of $1,500 had been inserted in order not to embarrass the incoming Council.

Mr. STANTON after a few further remarks on the constitution of the corps declared himself satisfied.

INTEREST (BATH CLUB).
Mr. CAMERON queried the amount included in the estimates under this heading, and it was explained that this entry should read, "Interest, Bath Club, etc.," the etcetera being interest on Bank balance.

WHARFAGE DUES AND BUSINESS TAX.
Dr. Rössler, referring to the revenue entry under the above heading, asked if this tax was levied also on medical practitioners.

Mr. Griffith replied that this had hitherto been the custom. Medical practitioners as well as mercantile firms had a certain amount of imports per annum; they were here to do business and not for their own pleasure.

Dr. Rössler contended that in view of the benefits conferred by medical practitioners on the Community this levy was quite unequalled for.

Mr. Griffith replied that he had no doubt that the incoming Council would consider the suggestion, if it were laid before them, but he would, in conclusion, point out that the incomes of medical practitioners were often considerably larger than those enjoyed by members of the mercantile community.

The discussion then closed.
Mr. JAMIESON then proposed, and Mr. STANTON seconded, the passing of the estimates.
Passed unanimously.

NEW OPIUM BYE-LAW.
Mr. JAMIESON, in submitting the draft (previously circulated) of the outgoing Council's proposed Opium Bye-Law for the consideration of the meeting, quoted the clause, "In order that due provision may be made for the better order and good government of the Concession," in Land Regulation No. 3, on which it was based. The proposed bye-law, he added, ran as follows:—

"Any person who allows Chinese for the purpose of gambling or smoking opium to frequent premises occupied, leased or owned by him, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding $100 for every such offence."

These were: Messrs. M. Steger, L. H. Gilman, F. W. Carey, Mr. O. V. Lanning, and R. C. Martin.

Mr. JAMIESON announced that the business of the meeting was now concluded. His functions at Municipal meetings would appear to be confined to presiding thereat and expressing to the outgoing Council appreciation of work done in the past year. On this occasion, however, a certain bitterness mingled with the pleasure which this latter duty gave him, in view of the departure of Mr. Griffith.

Mr. Griffith was now serving his long connection with the municipality. He would return to Shamen, it was true, but not as a permanent resident. A quarter of a century had elapsed since he had first had the pleasure of meeting Mr. Griffith on Shamen. From the time that he had cast off the swaddling clothes of greenhorn, he had thrown himself heart and soul into municipal work: the state of the British Concession of Shamen to-day was a standing testimony to his untiring energy for and scrupulous loyalty to the public welfare.

Mr. STANTON desired to associate himself with Mr. Griffith's services to the Council. It had been the speaker's privilege to know Mr. Griffith for many years and to know his works. The Drainage and Water Systems, the Lighting Installation and many other boons to the Community were attributable to his enterprise. He considered that it was only right and proper that the Council should in some small way mark their appreciation of fifteen years and more of devoted service, and he had very great pleasure in proposing the following motion, which should be recorded in the minutes of the meeting:—

That the incoming Council be authorized to express their appreciation of the many and valuable services which, in the course of his many years of residence on Shamen, he has rendered to the British municipality and the community in general.

Dr. Rössler seconded Mr. Stanton's motion, which was carried unanimously. Mr. Griffith in reply expressed his very great appreciation of the kind reference made to his work on the Municipal Council and of the unanimous support given by the meeting to Mr. Stanton's motion.

A vote of thanks was then rendered to the chair and the meeting terminated.
